

MENTAL HEALTH:

What youth are experiencing and what they can do

Many youth have been experiencing negative mental health during COVID-19, most of which stems from isolation, anxiety, and missed opportunities. During this time, youth have also shown resilience by using this time to work on themselves.

